The Company intends use non-productive areas of the farms to develop solar produced electricity in the California area, upon the completion of a construction of a proposed solar farm(s).

While the company focuses its current marketing efforts in the southwest United States (California, Arizona and Nevada) and Hawaii, the market for decorative and ornamental palms in the United States reaches throughout the south and southeast with major market opportunities including Florida and Texas.

The ornamental and decorative palm farming and sales business is characterized by fragmented smaller operators serving largely local markets. These smaller operations tend to be family owned and operated, often through several generations.
